School Song

*For Blue and White we will fight,
For White and Blue we'll be true,
And we will always give you all our best

*Till sun and stars cease to shine
Your glory will be our shrine
So, to the Eagles we are loyal,
We believe in You!*

Entering Our Town

The 1964 Aerie

Georgetown High School

Georgetown, Texas

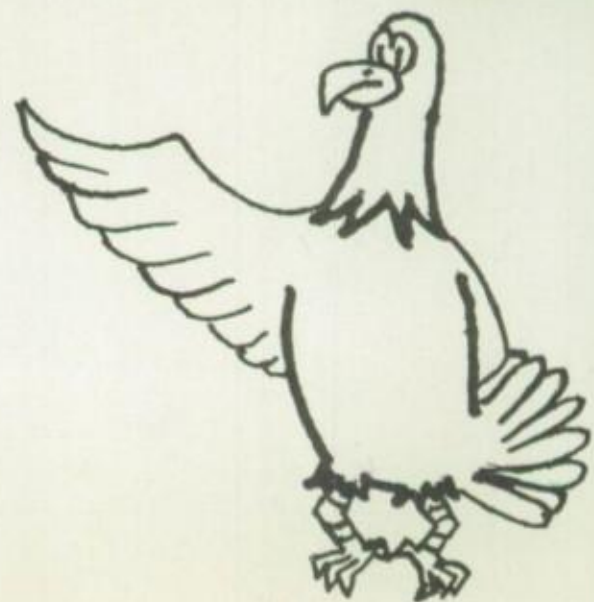

Volume XVIII

Hi, folks! I'm Egbert the Eaglet. Do you recognize the aerial view of Georgetown? I want all of you to know that our theme for the year is "Our Town, Our School," and that our school is our "aerie," which means eagle's nest.

All of us (the annual staff and me) hope that you will like the pictures with the backgrounds of Georgetown. We hope that every time you refer to your yearbook you will be reminded of the events of the school year, and of the City of Georgetown, Texas, the place where you lived during the year 1963-64.

Senior Class of '63 - those who showed up on picture day.

The juniors' traditional spring banquet for seniors was held in 1963, as is traditional, in the gym, but a gym transformed into a medieval banquet hall where jesters, troubadours and magicians provided entertainment for the "knights" and their "ladies."

"Oh, this castle is in such a state of ill repair," quoth Connie Wieland.

Jimmy, if you will take your eyes off Johnnie for a few minutes, I will show you how to set a table!

Clyde Gibson (no comment) and a knight in shining armor. (Knight by Mrs. Barnes.)

Linda Hubbard and Nikki Sandberg seem to be having a hard time making the ceiling stick.

"No, Ray, you have to sit by your date; you can't sit with the boys!" declared Pat Laubach to reluctant Ray Braun. Gwen and Bonnie endorse these sentiments.

Sandra Davidson and Connie Wieland patiently await the repast in the Banquet Hall of the castle.

Three Sophomore servers dressed as serfs use their imaginations as they warm at the fire.

Lady Johnnie Mae and Lord Jimmy smile for each other.

The class sponsors, Mesdames Barnes, Springer, and Cominotto, and Mr. Cairnes doubt the efficiency of the food committee and brought their own sack lunches. Furthermore, they stand guard beside them.

When the wrought iron gate clanged open these fair damsels were awaiting admittance.

The serving went very smoothly thanks to excellent waitresses and waiters such as Linda Peterson and Shirley Martinka.

Entertainment was provided by jester, Richard Oliveri, by Merlin, Bob Giddings, and troubadours, Ronald Longino, Larry Cole, Ray Hodges, Richard Baker, Nikki Sandberg and Ralph Russell who sang a "sweet" farewell to the Seniors.

This is the fine group of waiters and waitresses and some of the entertainers.

At the last senior party seniors and their guests enjoyed sitting around the Southwestern University pool before they went on to the Country Club for their fabulous end-of-school barbecue.

Gene, (far right) says: "Oh, no, I forgot my curlers! My hair will look a mess!"

Two sweet, swimming, senior Swedes, Sylvia and Jeanne.

The holds by which Janis and Linda keep up with their beaux are quite proper, but what kind of hold is that which Chuck and Sylvia are using?

This story has the group so charmed that they ignore the first call to supper.

Senior Assembly

Apparently some of the "great" seniors are having trouble with the routine. But this was only practice for the senior assembly.

Maybe the boy ballet stars at the assembly were a trifle stiff, but their poise and persistence compensated.

*Interscholastic League
Winners for 1963*

Such excellent spellers as Linda Ekdahl and Vivian Ickes are extremely attached to their dictionaries. They won District 2nds in Spelling and plain writing.

Under the discriminating and thoughtful coaching of Mrs. McCoy, Bill Elliott went all the way to Third in State in prose reading.

Because of his profound interest in number combinations Brian Adkins was selected to attend the National Science Foundation Summer Math program at the University of Texas. He was one of about thirty students chosen for this honor out of three hundred applicants.

Only thinking men such as these three can bring home all the honors in science. Brian Adkins won 3rd in District, George Woolsey 2nd, and Bob Giddings, who won 1st in District went on to win third place in the State.

Linda Reavis, who won a District 1st in prose reading, here practices up with the famous classic, "Pitty Pat."

A quick wit for figures assured John Clifford a 3rd place in number sense.

Interscholastic League Baseball

under Coach Paine produced a good team, though not district winners.

First place winners in choir are Beverley Gervasi, Sara Hausenfluke, Becky Switzer, Pat Laubach, Brian Adkins, Linda Hubbard, and Connie Foster.

George Woolsey, '63 graduate, also won a first in choir.

Student Directors for the choir were Sara Hausenfluke and Peggy Green, both of whom won first place in directing.

Junior High Medal Winners

David Adkins, English; David Clifford, social studies; Peggy Caddell and Jenny Williams, twirling; Cherry Sandberg, science; Mrs. Douglas for Jan Douglas, Spanish. Winner of the math medal was Stephen Benold, not shown.

*"Soc 'n' Buskin," drama club,

The cast of "Aria da Capo," which won District (1963) includes Becky Switzer, Lee Litzler, Bill Elliott, Gary Carlson, Paul Partain.

Thyrsis and Corydon, (Gary and Paul), plot against each other.

All-star cast from Speech Class Plays. Names are given below.

G. Carlson, L. Litzler, G. Montgomery, C. Forbes, B. Hindelang, J. Behrens, and P. Penniman.

Class Day, 1963

began with the awarding of LETTER G's for those who had done outstanding service for the school. A few of those who received them are gathered at the left. The picture especially shows the dramatic Becky who won at least one award for being dramatic.

Mike: "No use being as solemn as George. I'll just practice flipping my tassel the way I'll do it after I receive my diploma. And I just can't wait to shake all those hands!"

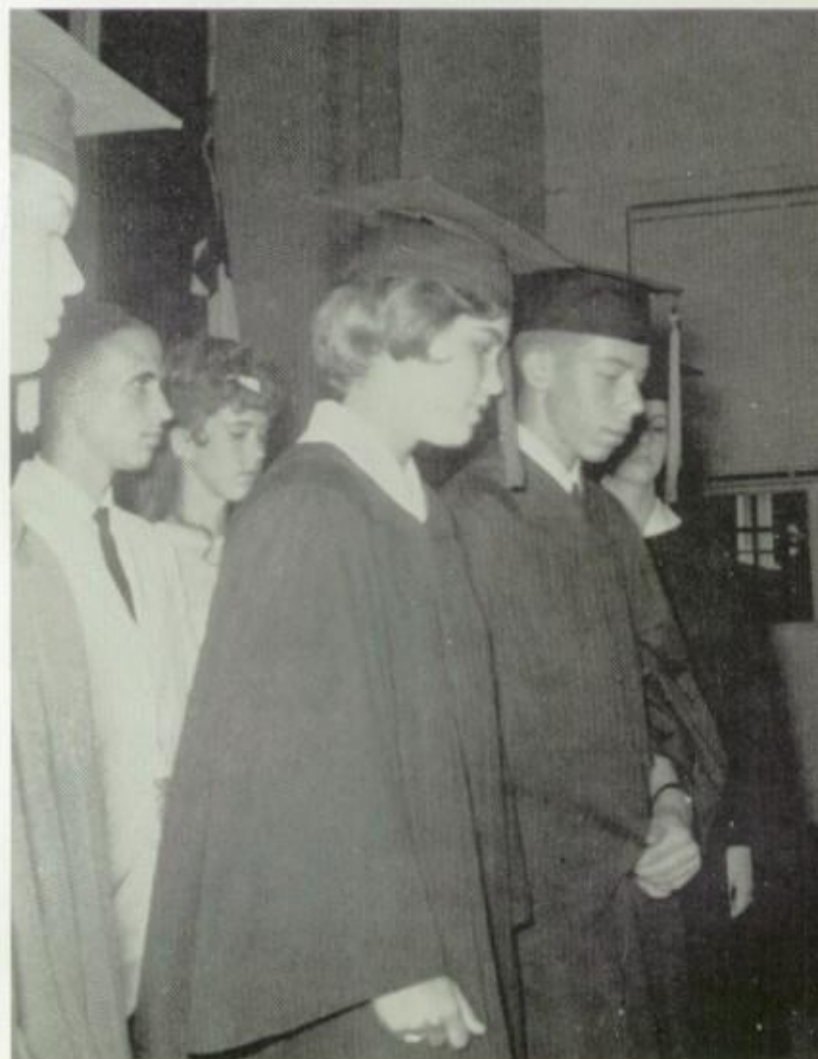

Year after year the audience breaks into laughter spasms during the class history, prophecy, and will reading. The seniors shown here were among those who provided the amusement.

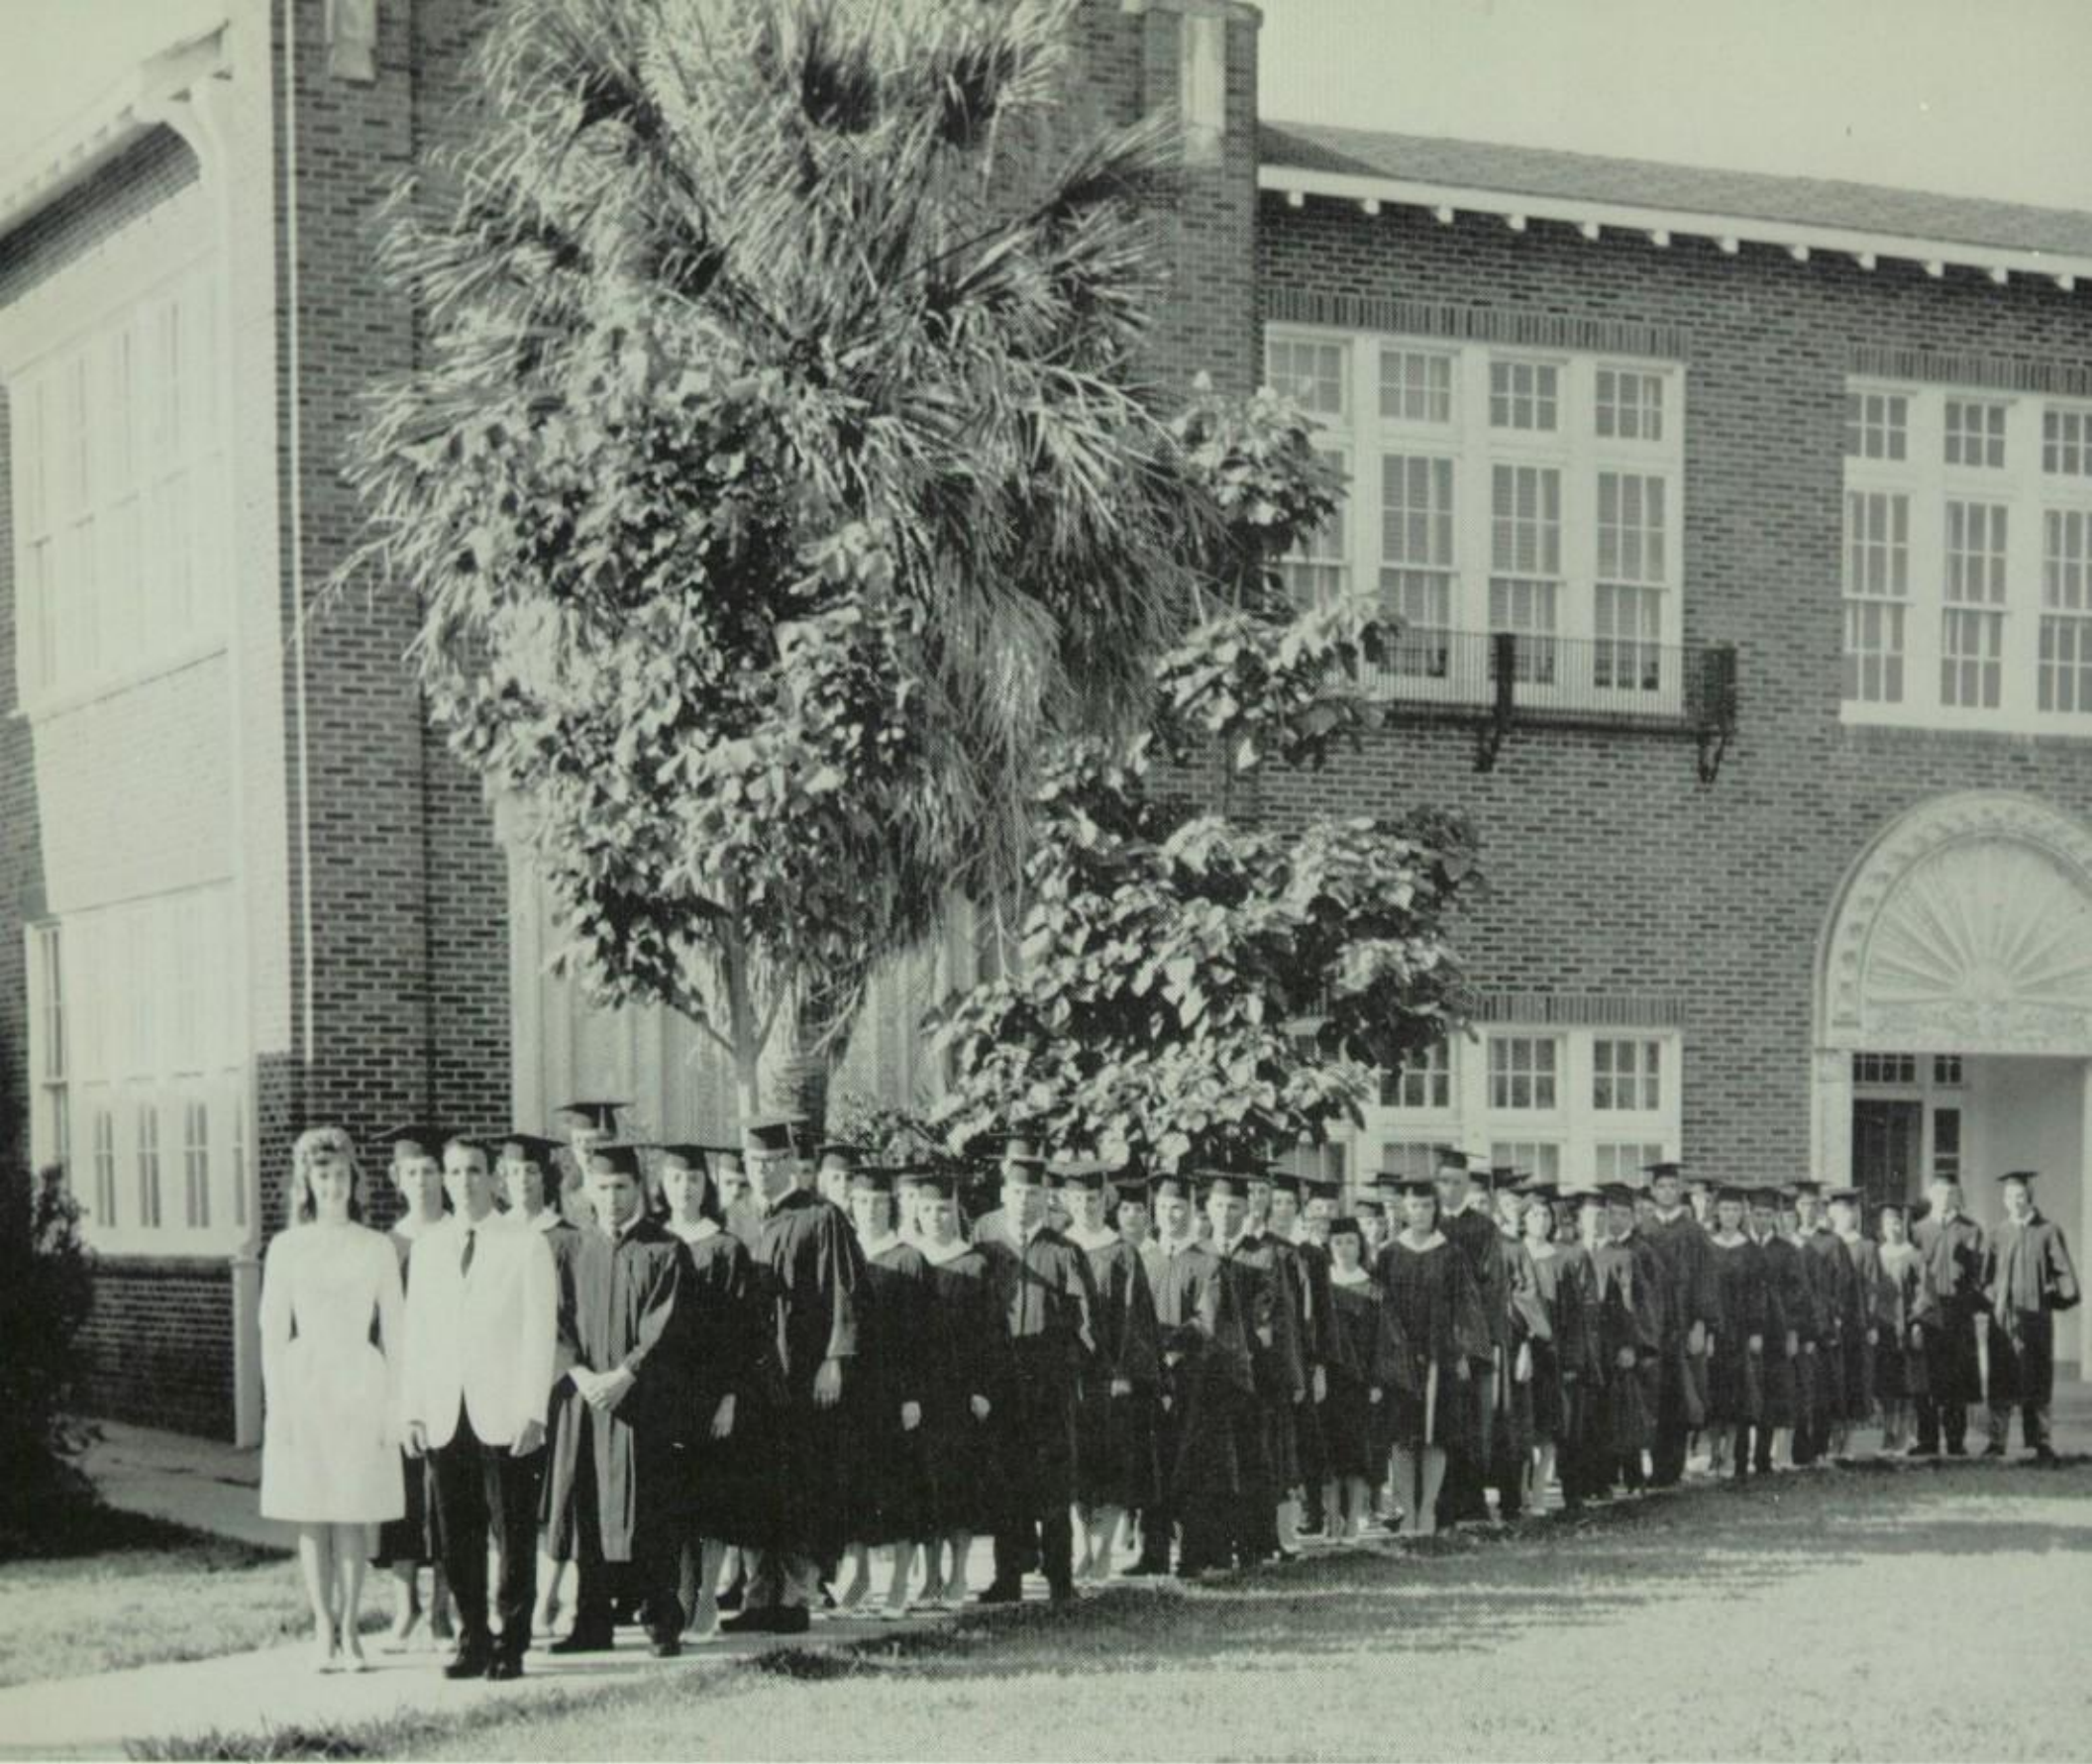

Also, the three handsome singers at the right, above, brought out smiles and chuckles with their happy rendition of "Tijuana Jail."

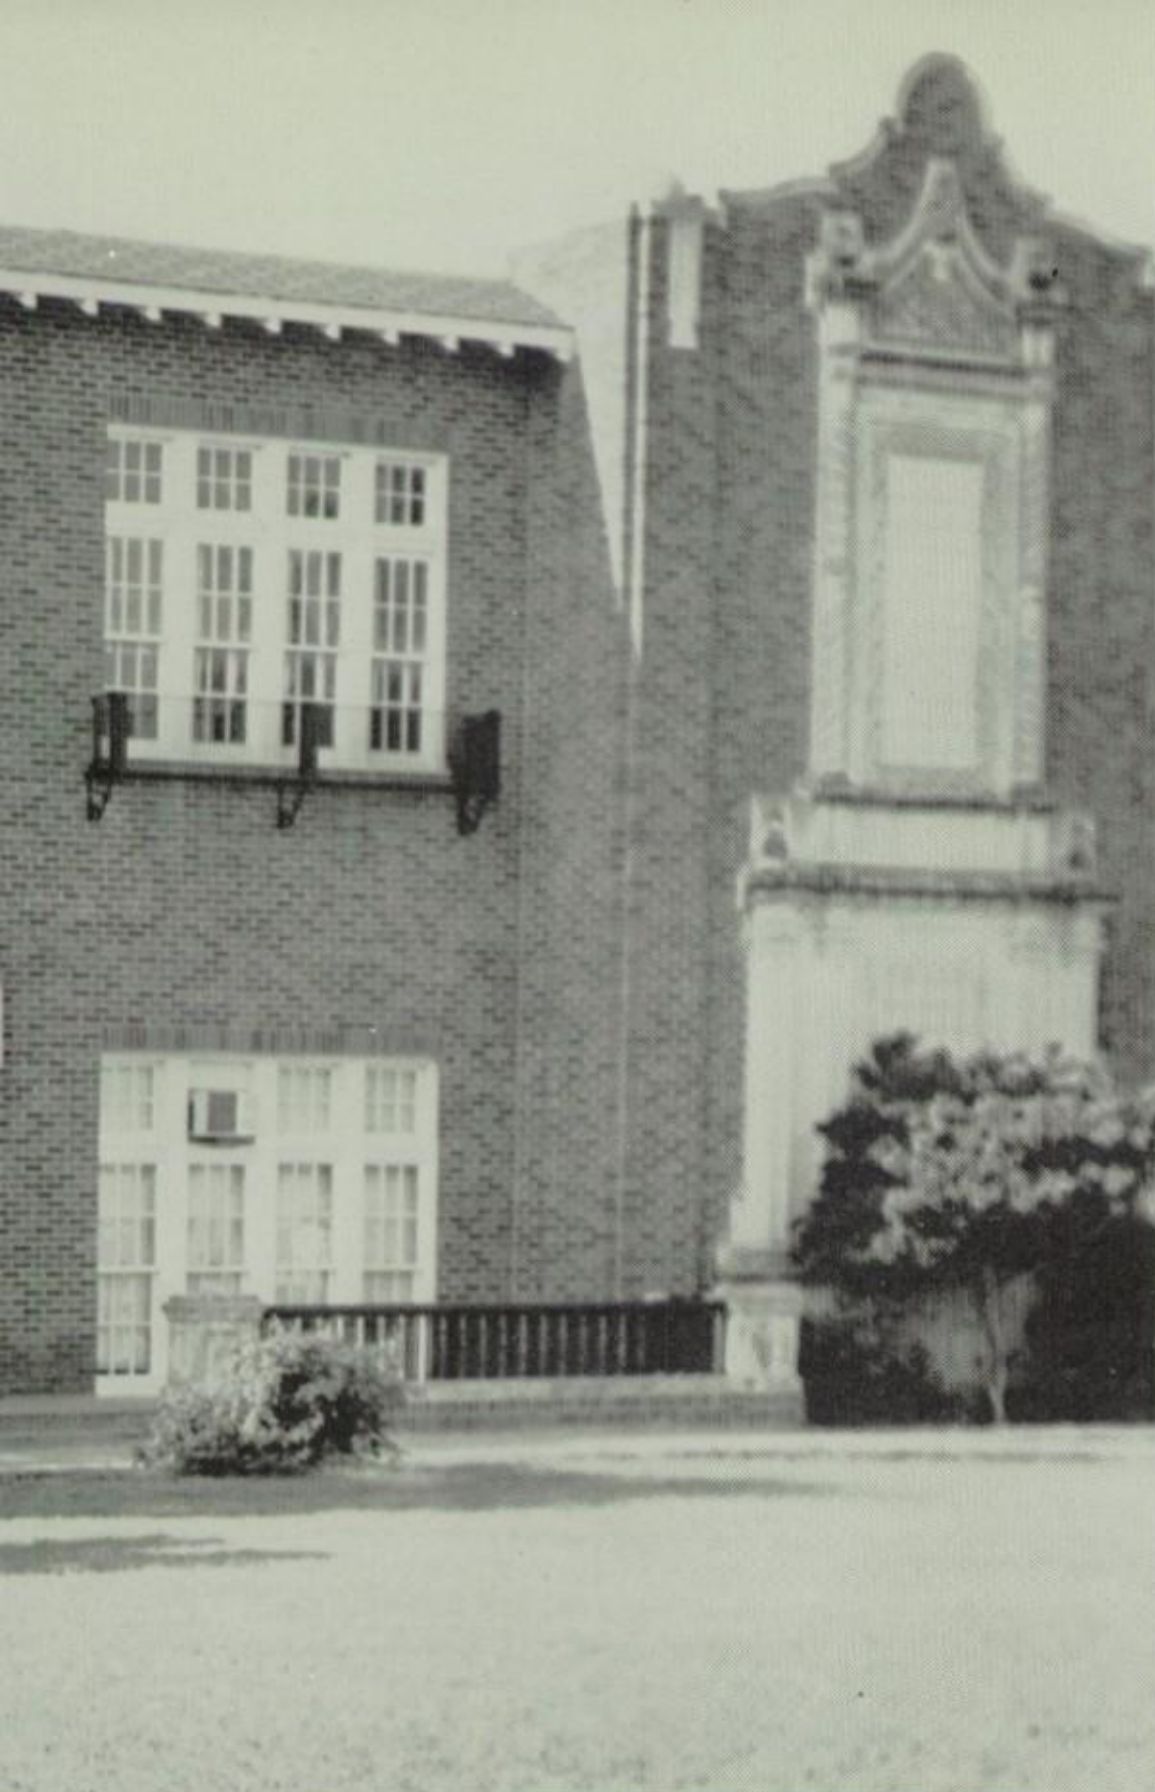

Donald Nobles was pianist for the occasion. He played "Pomp and Circumstance" with style, and did an excellent accompaniment for Jeanne Mayo's solo, "Love Look Away," from Rogers and Hammerstein's The Flower Drum Song.

At right: Even Kandy and Gary look rather serious as they begin the last long march out of the auditorium . . . out of their school and their high school days forever!

Farewell to Teachers

Many of our teachers departed in 1963 and we here wish them well in their new surroundings.

At right, Mrs. Medley, who retired from teaching, receives a gift from Bob Giddings and Melvin Jacob, officers in Science and Math Club.

Below our departing teachers carry on in their ordinary manner as they chug away from Georgetown High. Mr. Fred Bell is gently encouraging the engine, and of course, Mrs. Barnes must drive while Mr. Barnes meditates on the best route to take. Mrs. Medley is still dazed from her summer's trip round the world, but good sport that she is, goes along for the ride. Mr. Paine relaxes after his hard year, but Mr. Jackson can't relax. He continues to direct. Mrs. Dannelley urges the driver to go faster, and Miss Gilbert with her accurate foot and Mr. Rosser wielding his paddle, ride along balanced on the heads of the others. Good-by, dear teachers, our loss is someone else's gain.

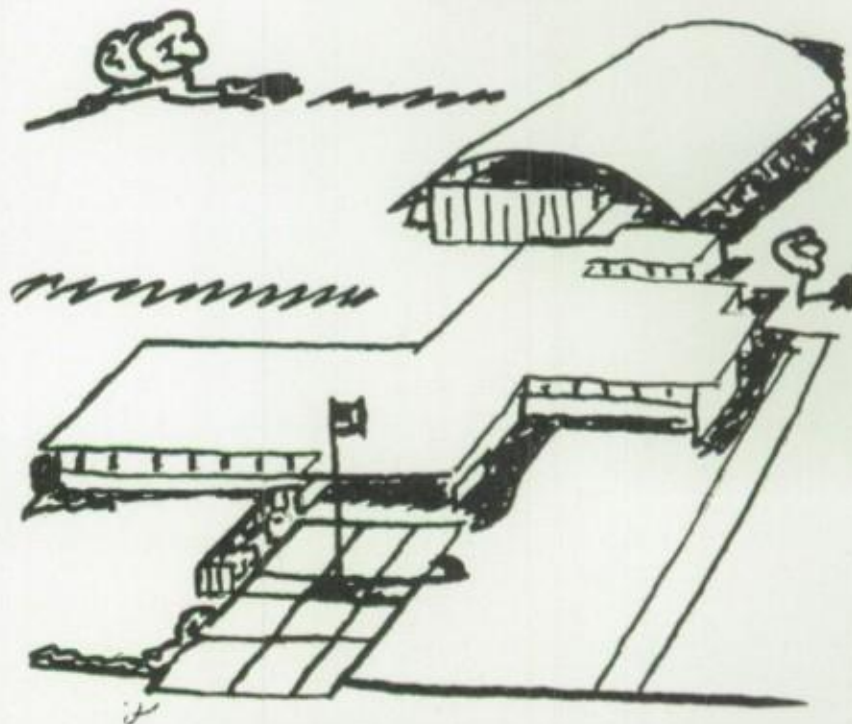

Administration

Taken in front of the Buchholtz home are our new superintendent, Mr. Bell, our counselor, Mrs. Pigg, our principal, Mr. Williams.

MR. FRED BELL, Superintendent:
B. S. and Masters of Education,
Southwest Texas College;
Prior to Georgetown, Superintendent at Kerrville, Texas.

The Administration is pleased to announce that after several years of planning and discussion the contracts are signed for the construction of the new Junior High School in the Crestview Addition of Georgetown. Superintendent Bell states that the building will be ready for use in the fall of 1964. The High School Building will be completely renovated, and the West Side School will also be completed.

MRS. EVELYN PIGG, Counselor:
B. A. University of Denver;
M. A. University of Texas.

MR. EVERETT WILLIAMS, Principal:
A. B. Baylor; M. A. Texas Technological College.

Senior High Students

Typical students of the senior high school are gathered by the D.A.R. historical marker, which gives the source of Georgetown's name. There are 345 students in the senior high. We hope that a majority of them choose to make their homes in our town for many years to come.

Classrooms

There is always an interesting discussion going on in a classroom.

Plays are great fun when you get to stand up to read your lines, as these English II students of Mrs. Hindelang are doing.

At right: A person's hobby usually makes a good topic for an oral theme. These 7th grade students all had lively talks.

English and Spanish

Mrs. Sanders provides even more fun, for these students got to go to the stage.

One of the experiences that nearly all Freshman enjoy is the reading of David Copperfield.

Mrs. Armstrong's English, as represented by these hard working students of 7-1 section, is a real work period.

The panel discussion in Mrs. Springer's English 3 are never as deadly dull as these expressions would indicate! The topic, "Immigration," was a serious one.

Oral interpretation of material in "Calvacade" magazine and - - - silent personal enjoyment.

Both Spanish teachers, Mrs. McCoy and Mrs. Jones, believe in practicing Spanish conversations through skits.

History

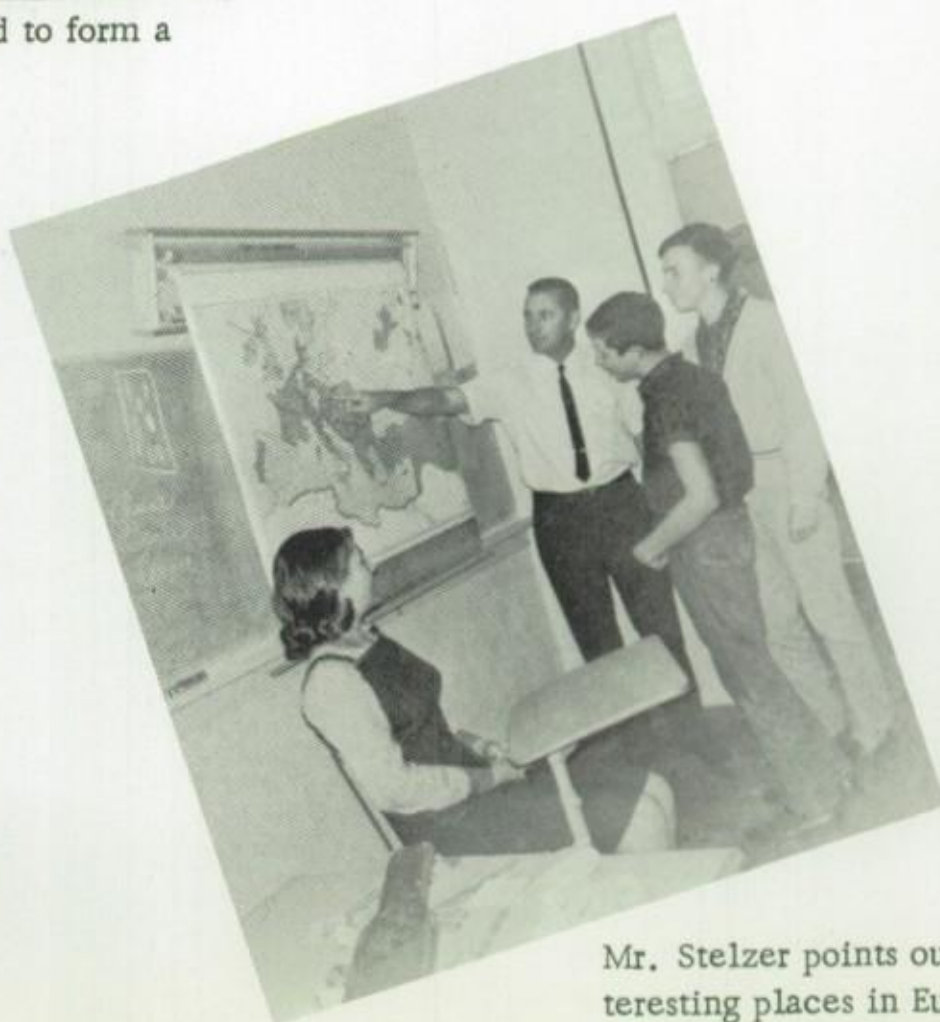

Mr. Williamson demonstrates to these American History students how a guillotine works.

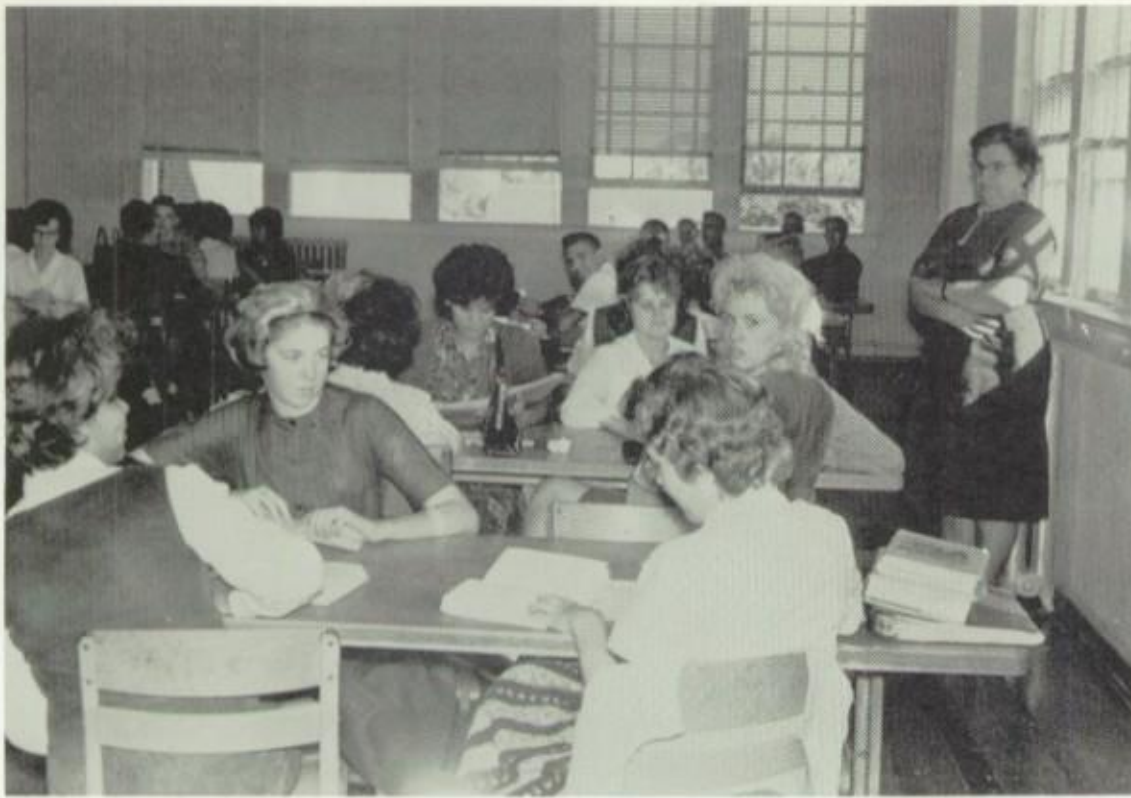

These 8th graders of Mr. Fisk study what is needed to form a more perfect union.

"The flags that have flown over Texas" is the history topic in Mrs. Jones's 8th grade class.

Mr. Stelzer points out interesting places in Europe to these Sophomores.

Study Hall

In study hall some students study - - - some don't, as we see here.

Mrs. Ruth Carlson, study hall teacher.

Typical study habits of Freshman, revealed by candid camera.

Carl receives a lollipop from Mrs. Carlson for an

Ag. boys are mounting trophies shot by themselves and anyone else who would donate one.

Jackie and Pud show off the antlers they got this fall while Al shows Mr. Cairnes' prize specimen.

Homemaking

Betty Klepac shows almost professional skill in cake decoration.

Agriculture

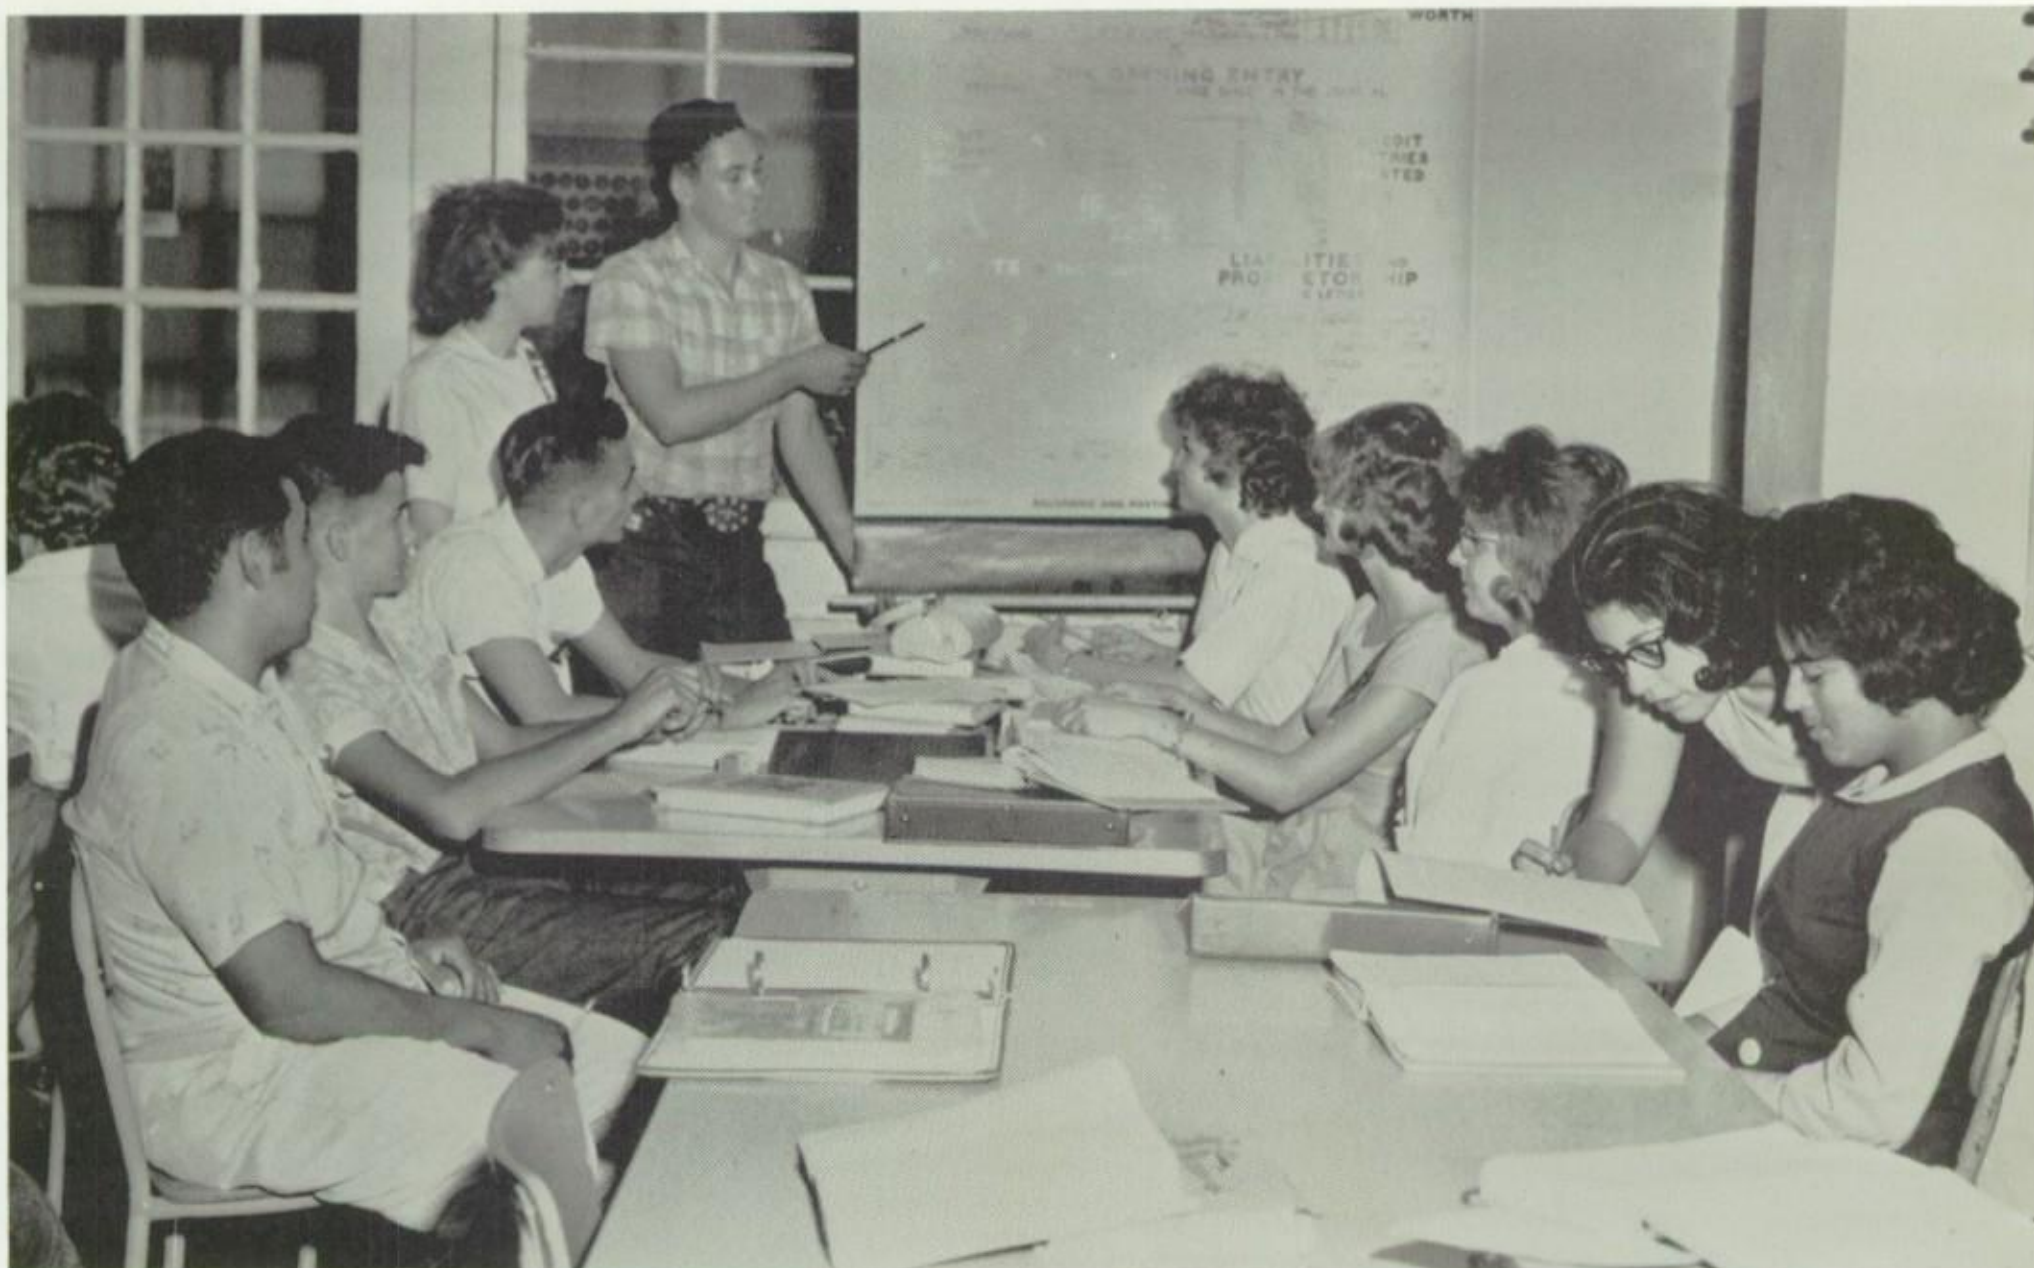

Looks like Mrs. McClain is being bribed with goodies prepared by members of home-making class.

Being a seamstress requires patience and determination. Joy holds both of these in her possession. These garments were for her little sister's introduction to the sand pile society.

Bookkeeping and Physical Education

Marvin White explains a point to the Bookkeeping class, using the chart to illustrate.

Peggy Caddell has something of great importance to tell this freshman line of goal shooting experts.

Junior Julie Bohanan seems definitely pleased with her last shot.

It's no trouble at all to make a pyramid in Miss Ringness's P.E. class with strong, agile, well balanced 7th grade girls.

Science and Math

Some members of Mr. Hakes 3rd and 6th period physical science making carbon dioxide.

Below: Talk break in Mr. Gentry's Science class.

Lower left: Juniors and Sophomores learn to dissect in Mr. Tippet's Biology.

Mr. Tippet - or the balloon - seems to attract hordes of young girl students.

Lower right: Mr. Thompson's 7th grade science class.

Mathematics

in Mr. Gibb's class can cause deep thought to the very best brains!

The gadget on the desk shows these upperclass students a drawing or a problem very clearly when the image is projected on the screen.

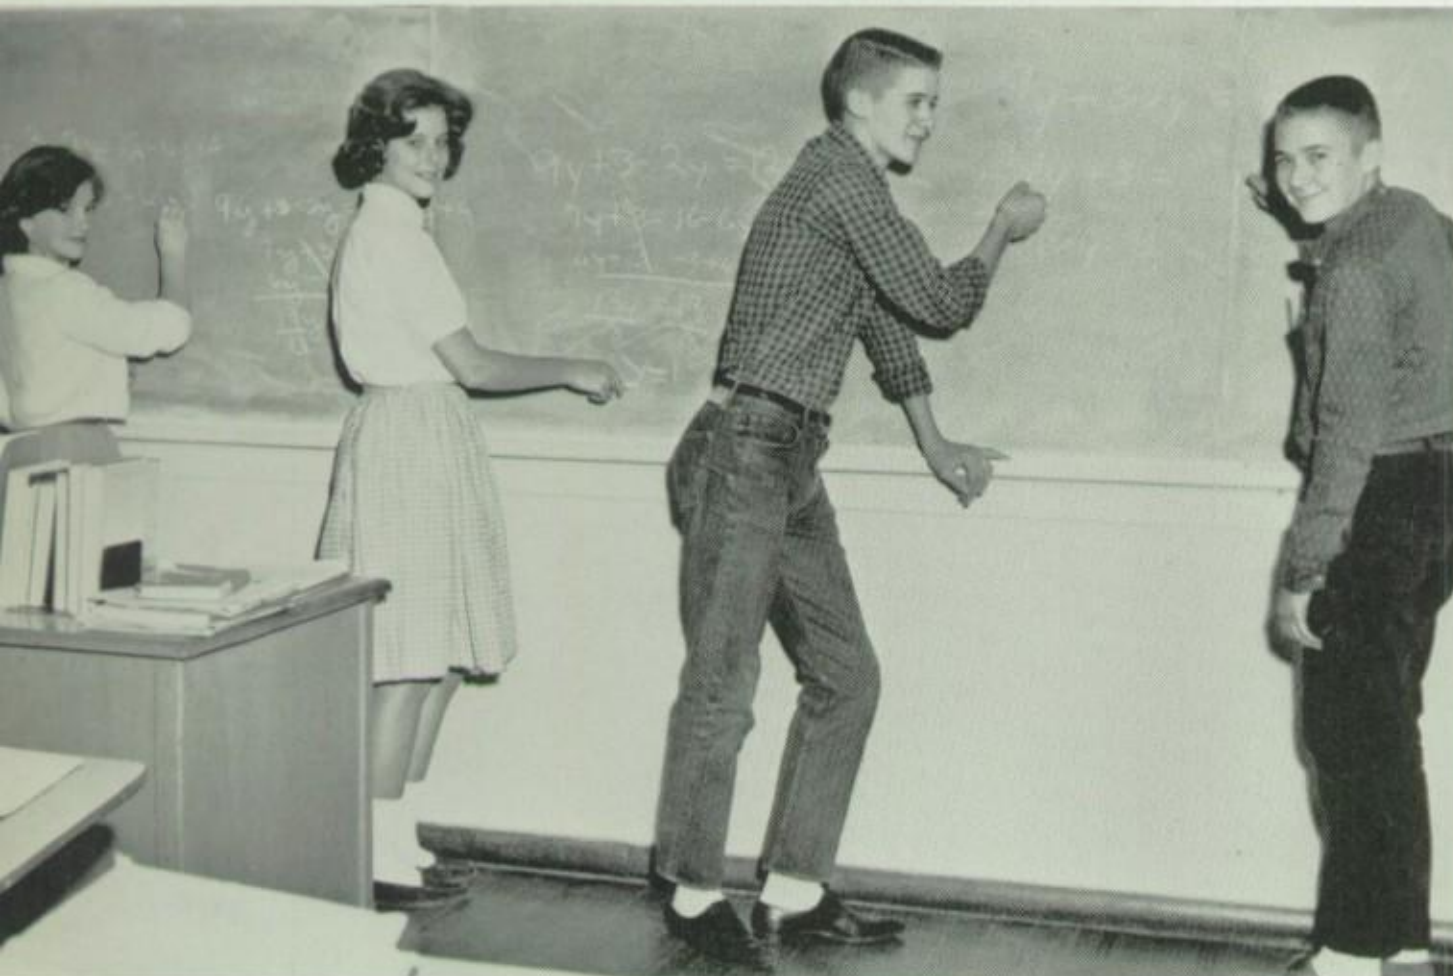

(At left) Don't let Doris's contemplative expression delude you. She really comes up with a quick answer in math.

Oh, dear, why do freshmen have to understand about sets?

Even though Mrs. McClain does have a paddle in her hand she wouldn't hit her dear, perfect 8th graders.

These studious freshmen seem to know a lot about algebra!

While some of Mr. Kidd's 7th graders think about it, others beg to be called on; they know the answer this time to 7 times 9.

Honored by being selected as nominees for the title of "Mr. and Miss Georgetown High School" are these outstanding members of the Senior Class of 1964. Joyce Langenegger, Melvin Jacob, Susan Gamble, Brian Adkins, Rebecca Kauffman, Bob Giddings, Linda Reavis, and Craig Glasscock are certainly representative students and are worthy of the honor, as were some others who were close runner-ups in faculty voting. Mr. and Miss GHS on opposite page were selected by vote of the student body from among those nominated by the faculty.

D.A.R. and Optimist Awards

For dependability, leadership, and good citizenship, the D.A.R. Award was presented to Peggy Green.

Optimist's Best Citizenship Award was presented to Melvin Jacobs who was nominated by Bonnie Leschber. Although Melvin here studies "The Signs of Shock," he had to admit, under pressure, that his selection for the honor wasn't really so surprising.

The Optimist Club stimulated our school by sponsoring a Youth Appreciation week. Outstanding members of all school organizations were honored, and good citizens from some of the classes were nominated by their classmates.

Beth Couch, 7th grade, was nominated by Karen Miller.

Jan Sloan, freshman, was nominated by Shirley Ickes.

Young Texan Award nominees were Bob Giddings and Bill Elliot.

This fine group of students wrote essays on "What the Flag Means to Me."

Orators are Richard Bost, Beverly Gervasi, and Bob Giddings.

Activities

A typical scene in the lives of prospective Cheerleaders and Student Council officers is the hustle and bustle of sign hanging during the week of the elections.

Assemblies

Joyce Langenegger was the recipient of "The Betty Crocker Award." This award is presented yearly to the senior girl making the highest grade on a homemaking test sent by the company.

Connie Foster sang a solo at the Christmas assembly.

Seniors receiving Choir pins at the Christmas assembly. All the seniors were honored in this manner to show appreciation for their choir membership.

Solos were also sung by Sara Hausenfluke and Beverley Gervasi.

School Plays Continue to Develop Talent.

Student Director Paul Partain reels off a few rules for the freshman cast of "Nobody Sleeps." Characters: Eric Girvin, Cathy Lott, Becky Teele, Lee Evans, Claudia True, Joyce Henderson, Tommy Forbes, Woodie Baker.

These clever "poster" girls even sewed cloth costumes to help advertise "Seven Sisters."

If Paul were just wearing a checked coat and an eye shade he could pass for a Hollywood director. He's certainly got the right attitude.

We'd like to shine a little light and spread a little glory over the workers shown on these two pages. In order for a play to succeed, someone must make the public want to attend, hence the publicity committee, shown with posters. Someone has to alter, sew up, rip out, re-make and press! When the actors prance upon the stage, part of their glamour is due to such diligent girls as these of the costume crew.

T'oo bad, this play just won't go right. No one's in character! Guess we'll just have to give up. Or maybe we can just all try harder.

The lighting crew, below, light the way for others, and use their skill to help create an atmosphere. Such workers are seldom seen or praised. So here's a small bouquet for these technicians.

Entrants in the Waco High School Speech Tournament learned many valuable lessons. We honor these entrants for their school spirit and their willingness to devote their time to preparing for the contest.

Right: Four senior debaters, Julia Eanes, Joyce Langenegger, Willie Hausenfluck, and Brian Adkins here appear to be in a friendly argument, but at the tournament they met opponents who were not so friendly, nor were the judges as understanding and sympathetic as their sponsor, Mr. Tippitt.

"Duet Acting" was the classification that Clifford Langford and Linda Reavis chose to enter. Here they are trying to get into the mood to portray an old gentleman and lady in a cutting from the play "A Sunny Morning."

These cocky play-boys and girls weren't quite so cocky when competing in Prose Interpretation and Oratory against a thousand other contestants from ninety-four other schools. Their wobbly legs left them much too weak to slit their own throats with swords. These heros and heroines are Beverley Gervasi, John Clifford (center, front, who triumphantly moved into the semi-finals in Original Oratory), Linda Hubbard, Paul Partain, Brian Adkins, and Bob Giddings.

Georgetown High School A Cappella Choir

This year our choir boasts four members in the All State Choir; Clifford Langford, Johnny Gamble, Sara Hausenfluke and Peggy Green.

Even Beverley Gervasi, soprano section leader, enjoys a good joke, although she hates to admit it.

New music brings out the adventure in Chuck Forbes, tenor section leader.

"It takes good directing to keep the altos in shape," says section leader Peggy Green.

Brian Adkins hits a low bass note as he leads his bass section at their rehearsal.

In the First Baptist Church are officers of our choir, Pres. - B. Adkins, Librarian - S. Hausenfluke, V. Pres. - C. Langford, Sec. - P. Green, and Reporter - C. Kolinek.

Regional Choir Members include C. Langford, B. Adkins, C. Forbes, P. Green, B. Switzer, L. Reavis, J. Gamble, S. Hausenfluke, C. Foster, and B. Gervasi.

This group of majorettes clustered around the drum major contributed grace and rhythm to each pep rally when they performed, and at ball games they marched, performed at the half and in general boosted the image of our school. Many long hours of practice goes into achieving even a small measure of their art.
